[illegible]ERAL NEWS.

[illegible] TO THE OREGONIAN.]

[illegible] Hall in England.

[illegible] March 31.—A representative of [illegible] acquainted with A. Oakey [illegible] the Victoria at 2 o'clock [illegible] says a passenger answering [illegible] was aboard. This passenger [illegible] later in the cabin examin[illegible] Hall was immediately recog[illegible] who was known on [illegible]. He has about a fort[illegible] mustache and side whiskers, [illegible] in old clothes,—dark blue [illegible] small, common cap, and spec[illegible] customary eye glasses. The [illegible] asked to see him privately [illegible] way to his stateroom. I said [illegible] disappeared from New York [illegible] and was believed to be on [illegible] Victoria. Hall replied, [illegible] I told him he was [illegible] I was mistaken. I told [illegible] Hall, and that his family [illegible] and that his friends in [illegible] excited about him. He [illegible] would be excited, and made [illegible] weather and went out to [illegible] the ship, and as I helped [illegible] he asked me if I did [illegible]. He now wore an Ulster [illegible] he went to the office [illegible] of the Victoria, thence [illegible] and finally to the [illegible] station, where he took [illegible] and left by the noon train.

[illegible] as to the Man.

[illegible] March 31.—There is hardly [illegible] A. Oakey Hall of New [illegible] Sutcliffe, discovered o[illegible] ship Victoria, which [illegible]. He engaged passage Mon[illegible] Boston. During the day [illegible] office and asked whether he [illegible] on the Victoria, and how [illegible]. Mr. O'Hara, the clerk, [illegible] probably sail on the 17th [illegible] to engage passage, and [illegible] completed by paying the [illegible] same as W. E. Sutcliffe, [illegible] clerk thought it queer that [illegible] chosen a freight ship [illegible] have taken a passenger [illegible] when the news [illegible] to Hall's flight for Eu[illegible] the date of the Victoria's sa[illegible] reminded of the sol[illegible] a picture of the ex[illegible] W. E. Sutcliffe must be [illegible] suicide and financial [illegible] coupled in turn to ac[illegible] are now libelled. [illegible] knew Hall well, [illegible] will not segregate over [illegible] disappearance was he c[illegible] he was too good man[illegible] to invite murder.

He was evidently [illegible] route for he inquired [illegible] and seemed [illegible] took a hand[illegible] private [illegible] evidently expected, [illegible] ring or knock, and [illegible] with his baggage. [illegible] the station by any ac[illegible] he was not recognized by [illegible] he seen. The Victoria's [illegible] medium height, dressed as [illegible] the dispatch, and walks with [illegible]. His face recently clean shaven [illegible] covered with a rough gray stubble. [illegible] denies that he is A. Oakey [illegible] steward of the Victoria volunteers [illegible] Sutcliff was the greatest [illegible] punster ever met, and an at[illegible] Associated press, who saw and [illegible] with Sutcliff at Liverpool affirms his [illegible] there is no mistake about his [illegible]

What [illegible] Tweed's release has been the nec[illegible] conveyance of transferred property [illegible], and by him to the city. The boy took his hat and left [illegible] directly home he took a [illegible] his father entering the yard [illegible]. The boy is said to be insane.

At London brokers refuse to quote bar silver to-day; the price is nominally about 54d.

The Economist says: The limit below which Germany will not sell silver at London for the present is 55 pence.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Fernando Wood on the Compact.

CHICAGO, March 31.—The Times' Washington special says: Wood, in an interview to-day, said he could not understand the mystery attached to this so-called Southern compact business. He said it was hard for the country to give public men credit for any motives above self-interest. He considered this whole sensation a bit of nonsense, and he considered himself in the past, and still considered himself, leader of the anti-filibusters in the House, and until the publication of this compact he had never heard of its existence. He cited this fact merely to show how little it must have entered into the real contest of the House. He had acted as he did solely in the interests of the country, and from no understanding or agreement. He had no favors to ask. He regards the task of breaking up party lines in Southern States and of the administration securing an organization of the House as absurd.

Returning Home.

CHICAGO, March 31.—The Journal's Washington special says: Hampton leaves for home at midnight to-night, and Chamberlain on Monday. Hampton is still uncompromising, and talks boldly. Chamberlain's proposition that arbitrators should be selected to decide what members of the State legislature are legally elected, and then let these members settle the question of governorship, is a very fair and honorable method of reaching the matter. Hampton's defiant attitude prevents this being accomplished. Secretaries Schurz, Evarts and the conservative elements in the House approve this plan. Fears are entertained of a disturbance of the celebration which the Democrats have arranged in honor of Hampton's return.

Troops to be Withdrawn.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—As the result of the cabinet deliberations to-day, it has been decided to withdraw the troops from the State House at Columbia, but keep them in the State. A letter to that effect has been addressed to Hampton and a duplicate to Chamberlain.

Chamberlain's Propositions.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Gov. Chamberlain had a conference with Secretaries Evarts and Schurz this afternoon, and says the question under discussion precluded the proposition to withdraw the troops, and he has received nothing on the subject from the President.

Attorney General Devens and Secretaries Evarts and Schurz and Postmaster General Key to-night called upon Chamberlain concerning South Carolina affairs. The following are the propositions of Gov. Chamberlain, submitted to the President: The Republicans of South Carolina are actuated now as at all times heretofore by an earnest desire to adjust all political differences as to the lawful government in the State on a basis of justice and right, and affirm that their course heretofore in relation to the election of Governor and Lieut. Governor and the organization of the House of Representatives has been strictly just and legal, and that the government which the undersigned represent is in all respects lawful, and the only lawful government of South Carolina.

JOHN D. PATTERSON,
DAN'L CHAMBERLAIN,
D. T. CORBIN.

Hampton Apprehends no Difficulty.

Gen. Hampton said to night in event of the troops being removed from the State house at Columbia he thought there would be no difficulty in peaceably securing the State government without resort to legal proceedings.

Undisturbed in his Gubernatorial Functions.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The Tribune's Washington special gives an account of the rush to see Hampton made by the bourbon Democrats, by the most prominent party leaders and by the rag and tag and bob-tail of Washington, but adds, in justice to Hampton, he discouraged rather than courted this notoriety. When the question is raised as to whether he is governor of South Carolina he claims he is undisturbed in executing his gubernatorial functions, paying salaries, supporting State institutions, issuing warrants for hanging guilty criminals, and pardoning innocent ones. He wants the withdrawal of the troops and the State courts will soon dispose of Chamberlain.

The Louisiana Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Judge Lawrence and General Hawley, of the Louisiana commission, had an interview with Secretary Evarts to-day. The commission will leave for New Orleans on Monday.

Learning the President's Views.

Gen. Harlan and Gov. Hawley have spent a considerable part of the day learning from the President his views concerning the mode of procedure. McVeagh and Lawrence will arrive in the morning. Evarts is preparing letters of instruction reflecting on the cabinet proceedings. The commission will also be here before the completion of the letter, which will then be published.

Afraid of the Result.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 31.—Gov. Brown, of Tennessee, in an interview states he only accepted the position on the commission to Louisiana after frequent solicitude and urgent advice of leading Democrats in Washington and New Orleans. He hopes the commission may be able to forward the President's policy of pacification, but can see no feasible plan for doing so now. He thinks the way may be found clear when the commission reaches Louisiana and takes in the situation. He will heartily co-operate in doing what the President desires in the interest of establishing the rightful government.

Tit for Tat.

Democrats boast that should some Southern Democrats vote with the administration that the carpet baggers would make the balance by uniting with the Democrats. This seems to have some basis in fact, and it is alleged that an organization has been formed consisting of sixteen persons, three Southern Republican Senators and thirteen Southern Republican Representatives who aim at political self preservation. Persons cognizant with the case state these persons had decided if the President recognizes Chamberlain or Nicholls to dissolve affiliation with the Republican party and join with the Democracy. They say they cannot act with the Republicans on such grounds and can protect the Negro and serve their constitutents best by openly joining the Democrats. Ben Butler was mentioned as a leader, but probably will not act.

Stubborn and Uncompromising.

The Inter Ocean's Washington special says: Proof is stronger to day than ever that the President has notified both Chamberlain and Hampton that the military will be withdrawn from the capitol. This is a practical recognition of Hampton. The President is trying to get Chamberlain to assemble a session of the legislature, whose disputed members of the House shall all be Edgefield and Laurens contestants, and the legislature then canvass the votes for State officers. This would elect Hampton. Chamberlain shall, in the meantime, act as governor. Chamberlain objects on account of the notorious unfairness of the Laurens and Edgefield elections. He cannot be tempted with office and will not compromise, saying he will not sell out his party and State for personal advantage, nor yield without a struggle, and if defeated will make a new issue in the North, and will have the verdict from the Northern people. Hampton is equally stubborn and uncompromising.

Reorganizing.

Secretary Sherman intends to make a complete reorganization of the treasury department and will commit the details to Governor McCormick of Arizona, assistant secretary, whose talent as an organizer has frequently been tried. The plans are not fully matured.

The cabinet are exceedingly close-mouthed—keeping secrets more securely than the preceding one.

That Letter of Acceptance still in the Way.

It has transpired that while the electoral count was proceeding eighteen Democratic members of Congress united in a long dispatch to President Hayes, through Gov. Young, of Ohio, asking what would be Hayes' policy if elected, asking if one of five men named would be chosen to the cabinet, and closing with a request for an authoritative reply. Young immediately submitted the dispatch to Hayes, who remarked it was well written, but in regard to answering it he said that Young must do that, and for himself that he had no promises or pledges to make, other than in his letter of acceptance. Nobody was authorized to speak for him he said. Young answered the dispatch accordingly.

Visited the Arsenal.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The President and members of the cabinet, with Gen. Sherman and other army officers, visited the arsenal this A. M. to review the troops. At the conclusion of the parade the President returned to the executive mansion and the cabinet session held still continues.

Forwarded Plans.

Postmaster General Key to-day forwarded the postal authorities of the Netherlands copies, plans and specifications of the new postoffice, and also Chicago, St. Louis and Port Huron, in response to request for plans, etc., of the U. S. postoffices of the most recent construction, to use in the preparation of designs for new postoffices in their own country.

Commissioned—Assigned other Posts.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The commission of Edmar M. Marble of Michigan, to be Assistant Attorney General of the Interior Department, has been signed.

Six companies of artillery leave for New Eng and posts next week, leaving six companies in garrison at the arsenal.

Postal Changes.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Postmasters appointed—Homer D. Harkness, Leland, Josephine county; Allison Steers, Mount Hood, Wasco county; Jeremiah E. Henkle, Philomath, Benton county; Silas W. Crane, Sumner, Benton county; Samuel T. Goss, Scappoose, Columbia county; Mrs. Z. B. Lee, Warm Springs, Wasco county; James Dermatt, Pleasant Grove, Yakima county, Washington Territory.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

The Famine in India.

Ceylon advices say by the end of March 25,000 laborers will be paid off from the coffee estates, and in a month or two there will be some 80,000 to provide for. Meantime, gangs of starving men, women and children are coming over from India.

Bank of England.

LONDON, March 31.—The amount of bullion withdrawn from the Bank of England on balance to-day was £15,000.

Bank of France.

PARIS, March 31.—It is stated the Bank of France has advanced $100,000,000 to Russia to enable that government to redeem its debt interest due in April.

Directed to Remodel.

PARIS, March 31.—The budget committee, though most exclusively radical, refused to adopt the draft of the report on public worship estimates, drawn by Guichard, on account of its violent hostility to Catholicism, and directed Guichard to remodel the report.

Deserters Picked Up.

The ship Simon picked up a boat containing two deserters who had been fourteen days at sea, ten without food, and only a small supply of water. The men were landed at Sierra Leon.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The Revolution Continues.

PANAMA, March 22.—Colombia advices are favorable to the government cause. Since the banishment of Bishop Bermudez the clergy are more desperate than ever. On February 25th the Bishop of Bogota preached a seditious sermon which led to the adoption by the House of Representatives of a resolution pledging support to the chief magistrate in measures to crush the heads of the monetary and priestly oligarchy which directs, incites and sustains war against national institutions. They urge the executive power that as soon as the prelate, throws himself openly into the road of sedition, his effects shall be appropriated and the Archepiscopal palace used as an office for the secretary of war, and of marine, and the seditious prelate banished from the republic. The conflict is assuming more and more the character of a religious war. A battle took place near Manezales, in the State of Cauca, on March 10th, which resulted in a victory for the government forces. An official dispatch from the field says the battle lasted seven hours. It took place between some corps of the center of General Trujillo's line, and a force of the enemy, more than double their number, strongly entrenched. The enemy was dislodged and completely routed. The losses are heavy on both sides.

MEXICO.

Mexican Matters.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—A Tucson dispatch says General Mariscal is nominated for governor of Sonora.

News from the interior of Mexico is unfavorable to Diaz.

The Mazatlan customs officers have all been removed. A similar action is expected at Guaymas.

Notice is given the next Mexican Congress will be asked to grant a new railway franchise through Sonora to Arizona. It is understood to be in the interest of Mexicans and New Yorkers.

A SAM UV AGONY.

Nasby's grief when he learned that Hayes had been inaugurated could only find expression in the following "Sam uv Agony:"

In the dust uv hoomiliashen are we. Ashes we throw upon our heds by the scuttle-full. Hair cloth we wear next to our skins, figgeratively. Hair-cloth we wood wear next to our skins, actooalley, ef we cood git any one to trust us for a supply. Wood that goin about nearly naked wuz a proper mode uv expressin greef, for then we cood go into the deepest kind uv mourin without changin our costoom. There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea, four wich I'm blest ef I know: Wat the Dimocrisy wanted uv a high jint commission at all. Why it didn't hev a Dimecratic high jint, ef it had to have one. Why it didn't bust the concern afore it wuz everlastingly too late when it found, it wuzn't a Dimecrat High Jint. Why we wuz cust with men in the leedership wich hedn't cunnin enuff to win by strategy, or courage enuff to take by force. For three things Democrisy is disquieted, and four wich nearly killed it: Tilden, Hewitt, Pelton and Field. When I think uv the idiocy uv these men, wich we trustid, and into whose hands we gave curselves, I lift up my voice and howl with King Lemyooel's mother, 'Give not your strength to old wimmen.' Young ones take away strength, but it returneth; old ones destroy by their counsel, and it is irretreevable. Ef they'd hed ez much sense ez they hed money, we'd never bin made Nebuckhodnezzers uv, and bin turned out to grass in this way.

The Springfield (Ill.) Journal unfeelingly observes concerning the confirmation of Fred Douglass:

And has the Democratic party survived twenty years of hunger and blighting frosts only to see its members approving the appointments of "niggers" to $10,000 offices, when thousands of white Democrats are anxiously waiting to receive them?

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Easter Effects on Politics.

VIENNA, March 29.—The Catholic and Greek Easters, although falling on two successive weeks, bid fair to become, by tacit consent, a period of a fortnight's political lull, during which, however, time will not be lost, but the solution of the disarmament question is to be sought. The first task which the powers seem to propose during this lull is the removal of the deadlock between Turkey and Montenegro.

VIENNA, March 30.—The Neue Freie Presse says the question of the protocol will be separated from that of demobilization. In reference to the latter Russia would formally point out that she had already given promise to disarm. England would declare herself satisfied with this declaration if actual disarmament would be postponed until the Porte would likewise disarm. Meantime, it is believed peace between Montenegro and Turkey would be concluded in consequence of the signing of the protocol.

England's Objections to the Protocol.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: The objections of Her Majesty's government to signing the protocol seem to have been overcome by what concessions or engagements on the part of Russia we do not yet know. It may be taken for granted, however, that the Czar has consented to an arrangement to demobilize, and there is no reason to suppose Her Majesty's government will be content without a formal documentary engagement to that effect.

Bosnian Insurgents.

Suliman Pasha, commander of the Turkish forces in Herzegovina, is moving southward, so as to be prepared for all eventualities. The Prince of Montenegro has promised the Bosnian insurgents that he will take the leadership of the insurgents in Bosnia, or at any rate aid the insurgents.

The Hope of Peace.

LONDON, March 30.—The Post, in a leader, says if the expectation had not been so repeatedly deceived, we should announce positively that all difficulties between Eng and and Russia had been smoothed away.

A Stormy Interview.

LONDON, March 28.—A special from St. Petersburg says on Monday Lord Loftus, British Ambassador, had a stormy interview with Prince Gortschakoff. The latter used very energetic language relative to England's refusal to make any advances towards a peaceable solution. This interview, it was thought, would destroy the hopes of peace. However by Wednesday morning other counsels seem to have prevailed for a telegram that was sent to Count Schouvaloff, in which Russia made another step towards concession. The telegram authorized Schouvaloff to embody Russia's promise to disarm in the memorandum, which memorandum may, if necessary, be read in Parliament.

The Conditions of Peace.

The following are the conditions attached to the promise that the Porte will make peace with Montenegro, accept the protocol and send an ambassador to St. Petersburg to arrange the matter of demobilization. Schouvaloff communicated the foregoing to Lord Derby on Wednesday.

A Vienna special says it is stated that Ignatieff was plainly told when here that if Russia made war the event would be looked upon as unavoidable, but that would by no means be a sign of the approval of any territorial acquisitions she might wish to make in any direction. As there is every prospect of the negotiations which have been resumed under such good auspices resulting in a final agreement, we may prepare ourselves to learn that the protocol will shortly be signed. The only outstanding question is the Montenegrin difficulty, but confidence is felt in Russia's control and Turkey's desire to do all she fairly can do to meet the requirements of the situation.

Business Failures.

Thos. Grenena, coal merchant of Darlington, has failed; liabilities reported at £100,000.

Simultaneous Disarmament.

It is reported that the pending negotiations bear upon the question of the simultaneous disarmament of Russia and Turkey.

The Pall Mall Gazette announces that England has consented to sign the protocol, Russia agreeing to demobolize; but England proposes that the protocol become void should there be any failure to fulfill the engagement to demobolize.

The Powers Converging.

BERLIN, March 30.—It is understood that Bismarck, at the interview with Ignatieff, engaged to support the Russian fresh proposals. Probably England, France and Italy will shortly return their ambassadors to Constantinople or accredit a special envoy provisionally. Austria has intimated her intention of doing the same.

Turkish Mobilization.

BUCHAREST, March 29.—The Turkish Minister of War has ordered the immediate mobilization of the Territorial army of Vilayet of the Danube. It numbers about 25,000.

Protective Decree.

LONDON, March 29.—The Times' Berlin special says: By an order of the Russian government, all locomotives and rolling stock purchased by Russian railways must henceforth be manufactured in Russia. This is another heavy blow to German industry. To enable the railways to obtain locomotives and carriages in Russia, the government will allow materials to be imported, duty free, and will pay premiums and subsidies to Russian manufacturers. The decree, which will be promulgated in a few days, seems at present applicable to new companies only, but to be gradually extended to existing companies, as home manufacturers develop their works and can supply the demand.

England's Answer.

VIENNA, March 29.—The Political Correspondence publishes the following dispatch, which requires confirmation:

ST. PETERSBURG, March 29.—In consequence of the earnest request from Russia for a decisive answer upon the protocol question, the English ministers, after yesterday's council, expressed their willingness to sign the protocol as drafted by Russia, leaving aside the question of demobilization.

Russian Organ's Opinion.

BRUSSELS, March 29.—Le Nord the Russian organ declares the proposition for the simultaneous disarmament of Russia and Turkey quite as inadmissible as that for the pecuniary disarmament of Russia, unless positive pledges are given for the Porte's submission to the decisions of Europe. This is scarcely possible at a moment when the Porte refuses to make peace with Montenegro, and fresh outrages are perpetrated by Turkey.

The Turkish Parliament.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 29.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day several speakers opposed the cession of territory to Montenegro. A sentence was inserted in the address to the Sultan, expressing confidence that in this matter the government will act conformably with the interests and dignity of the empire.

Has been Signed.

LONDON, March 31.—It is officially announced the protocol has been signed.

LONDON, March 31.—The Times' correspondent says the protocol, in its final form, is a sort of solemn call upon Turkey, recommending all known reforms which are specified. There is no question of Turkey signing it. The same correspondent says Russia expresses readiness to treat directly with the Porte relative to disarmament, and for this purpose to receive a special commission from Turkey in St. Petersburg, thus removing the objection Russia had to allowing the powers any right of interference in the matter.

PRETTY GOOD FOR GRANT.—At the White House the other day Grant said a good thing: He had been stopped upon the street by office-seekers, and asked to indorse their papers. "Mr. Hayes," said he, coming into the room, "these fellows are all after me to sign their papers; they seem to think I have more influence with this administration than I had with the last one."

The Stranded Ship a Total Loss.

About 1 o'clock this morning three powerful tugs attempted to pull off the ship Frank Jones, stranded outside Fort Point. Up to that hour the ship was lying easily, making no water. The attempt failed. During the morning the ship gradually filled with water, is now a total loss and will be sold at auction Monday.

Shot and Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—About 7 o'clock last night a row occurred in a house in the rear of 620 Broadway, during which one of the participants was shot and killed. The man killed was named John McDonald, and has been employed as oiler on board one of the steamers of the China line. The one that shot him is Thomas Joell, who for five years has been employed as driver on the Kearny street line of cars. The trouble grew out of a religious discussion. McDonald knocked Joell down, when the latter fired, killing his assailant instantly.

Smuggled Goods Captured.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—On Friday, 200 pounds of opium and 500 pounds of tobacco, smuggled in the steamer Oceanic, were seized. The value of the smuggled goods is estimated at $3,700.

Water Matters.

The president of the Spring Valley Water Co. has addressed a communication to the mayor, dated the 27th inst., stating that unless the bills of Golden Gate Park be paid at once, and an arrangement be made for the payment of the future supply, the company will shut off the water from the park after the close of the present month.

Mortuary Report.

One hundred and nine deaths were recorded at the health office this week, an increase of nine over last week, but far below the average weekly mortality for the past year. Of these seven were from smallpox. There were 13 new cases of smallpox verified during the week.

Grand Jury Matters.

VALLEJO, March 31.—The grand jury of this county, which has been investigating the affairs of ex-county officers, is in session at Suisun. It may not report before midnight. It has leaked out that several county officials will be severely scored. It is quite certain that a minor one has been indicted and that a warrant is out for his arrest.

Goldsmith Maid and Rarus.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—At San Jose today, Goldsmith Maid and Rarus contested for a purse of $5,000, mile heats, best three in five, to harness. There was a large attendance, weather fine and track in excellent condition. The pools sold ten to one in favor of the mare. Bud Doble drove the Maid and J. Splann Rarus. The latter drew the pole the first heat. They got off well together at the third attempt. At the quarter pole the Maid drew ahead, time 35½, and widened the gap to the half, passing it in 1:15½. Rarus then pressed the Maid closely and nearly got abreast of her, but on the home stretch the Maid drew slightly ahead, winning by half a length in 2:22½.

Second heat—Good start was had after scoring twice. The Maid took the lead to the first quarter in 34½, Rarus close behind. The half mile was passed in 1:09. Down the home stretch they came at a tearing pace, Rarus doing wonderfully well, the Maid only leading him half a length, passing under the string in 2:16½—the fastest time in the State except that of Occident at the State Fair in 1873, which was the same.

Third heat—The Maid took the lead, making the quarter in 34½, the half in 1:08½ and winning by a neck in 2:18½. By the conditions of the race, as the Maid did not beat 2:16¼ the purse was reduced to $2,000.

The Moore Murder.

SAN BUENAVENTURA, March 31.—The prosecution is still introducing evidence against McCart, charged with the Moore murder. Two Mexicans swear following the tracks of a man, one of whose boots had been half-soled, to the house of the prisoner. When arrested he had on such a pair of boots, and the witnesses to-day on being shown the boots, swore that they would have made the tracks they saw. The other four who were in company with the man wearing these boots appear to have gone up or down the river, walking in the water. The prosecution expect to be through by Monday night. There have been no more arrests and no reward offered.

Elated over the Crop Outlook.

SAN DIEGO, March 31.—Over one inch of rain fell here. Reports from all points of the interior show from two to 3½ inches from ten to forty miles inland. This unexpectedly good rain puts a new face on the situation, and hopes are reasonably felt of at least half a crop of grain, which will be certain with light April showers.

Beekeepers estimate this rain has more doubled, some say more than trebled, the coming honey yield. The people everywhere are in the best of spirits over the changed outlook.

Rich Cinnabar.

VALLEJO, March 31.—The St. John Quicksilver mine near Vallejo, has struck a very rich body of ore in the lower level. The mine is about to put up a bench of six retorts, in addition to the three furnaces it is using.

Movements of the Russian Fleet.

Admiral Pausino will be shortly relieved of the command of the Russian fleet by Admiral Corono. No authority can be found for the report that the fleet will leave these waters in two weeks. When the vessels do leave they will all return to their respective stations on the China, Japan and Siberian coasts, excepting the Vsaanack, which in the course of a year will go home via Suez.

Expects to be Ordered to Washington.

Lt. De Kalands expects to be soon ordered as aid to the Russian naval officer at Washington.

The Rains.

Late rains, although amounting to only 16-100 of an inch here have wonderfully improved the looks of grain. Some fear, however, that it will aggravate mildew disease.

NEVADA.

Mining Suit.

EUREKA, March 31.—In the district court this morning Judge F. N. Cole decided the case of Gleason vs The Martin White Mining Co. in favor of the defendant. The property is situated in the Ward district, and the case was tried in Hamilton in November last. The case will be taken to the supreme court.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Sailed—Mining Troubles—Repealed.

VICTORIA, March 31.—The steamship City of Panama sailed at 12 o'clock to-day for San Francisco, with 60 passengers and 1,500 tons of Harewood coal.

Attempts at compromising the Wellington colliery troubles have been abandoned.

The legislature has repealed the drummers and drovers acts.

A. J. Gilliam, of Polk county, was severely hurt the other day by an accidental blow from a grubbing hoe. He was struck in the back and a deep gash cut, it is thought reaching one of the kidneys. His death is considered probable.

PIONEER ASSOCIATION.

BUTTEVILLE, March 28, 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

John Minto, president of the Pioneer Association has, through Secretary Brown, published a call for a meeting of the officers and friends of the association, to be held at Salem, commencing at 2 P. M. on Friday, April 6th. It is to be hoped the old pioneers within reasonable distance, which includes a goodly number, will attend this meeting, the object being merely preparatory to the annual reunion, which takes place June 15th. To those old members who feel interested in the future welfare of this association and enjoy an occasional meeting with ancient friends who were here in the days when provisional governments were founded, one can scarcely conceive in what manner they could pass an afternoon and evening more agreeably than in attending this preliminary meeting.

To be sure the pioneers may avail themselves of the opportunity offered through the favor of a generous public press to narrate loose startling incidents which occurred on many a hard-fought field in days of yore. Yet, to the old pioneers who took part in those sanguinary conflicts, nothing is more animating than when occasionally they meet face to face and recount the stirring scenes through which they passed when the native warlike tribes roamed at will over all this goodly land. It is indeed gratifying to learn, as we have, through recent developments, that even old Time, ever busy in adding to the already heavy burden of accumulated years, has as yet been powerless to subdue or enfeeble that heroic valor and patriotism which more than twenty-nine years ago fired the dauntless spirit of Oregon's invincible pioneers.

The Association has reason to be proud of the historical addresses heretofore delivered by ex-Gov. Geo. L. Curry, Hon. Stephen F. Chadwick, Gov. L. F. Grover, Hon. Matthew P. Deady and ex-Senator J. W. Nesmith, all of which have been published in pamphlet form by the Association.

The annual address by Judge R. P. Boise, and that of Hon. John Minto, which were delivered at the reunion in June last, have not yet appeared in pamphlet, but should be ready for exchange with other societies and delivered to members at the approaching reunion in June. At the meeting on 6th proximo, the place of holding the annual reunion will be designated, orators selected, and the general programme for the occasion made up, besides which, other business of importance to the Association will come before the meeting, hence it is desirable that as many members as can well do so, will be in attendance.

The income of the Association derived from all sources has thus far been applied to printing its annual publications, essays, painting banners, purchase of books and stationery, music and other incidental expenses,—the association having no salaried officers.

Capt. John Stump caught 100 trout from Mill creek one day last week, in three hours' time, without going outside of the city limits. We call it good fishing.

A lot of drunken Indians were making night hideous last Friday night on the bluff back of town. "Oh! where is the man that sells them the whiskey?"

Mr. George Miller, Esq., from Rockland, W. T., has purchased the city property of L. Davenport, with the intention of moving to this city to educate his children.

A party, in honor of Miss Annie Rankin, late of Illinois, at the residence of Mr. Thompson, on Five Mile, Thursday evening last, was voted to be jolliest of the season.

The wild flowers on the summit of the Klickitat mountains, 12 miles from our city, grow in such profusion that they can be plainly seen with the naked eye.

A case was tried in the sheriff's court last Thursday about the right of property, which had been attached for debt. The jury failed to agree, and the property was short to pay court expenses.

The lordly Columbia is again on the rise, having risen some four feet during the last Wednesday and Thursday. The Columbia is higher at this point than ever before known at this time of year.

Mr. E. B. McFarland arrived home on Friday evening last from his trip to San Francisco. I am informed Mr. McFarland brings with him the largest stock of dry goods ever brought to this city.

Captain John Smith, from the Warm Springs reservation, arrived in town last Friday evening, with fresh news of a very exciting nature from the Camp Creek mines. Everybody is excited over the news, and I learn that a party of 20 men will leave on the first of the week for the camp.

A farmer writes to the Hillsboro Independent: "Objection to the Chinese may be fairly made because of their unsuitableness to American society and because we do not want here a people who can not become citizens. But there is no good objection to our hiring the cheapest labor we can get. We are bound to do it. We do it because it is business to do so, and all the objections of white laborers who want more pay than they earn will amount to nothing." A letter has been addressed to the "boss" of a Chinese wash-house at Eugene City declaring that unless he and his associates leave the town they "will be butchered like hogs" within twelve days. The letter purports to have been written "by order of committee." It is in the hands of the sheriff, who is on the lookout for the parties.

A little daughter of A. Rollins, Esq., aged about eight years, while riding on the trucks of the Port Discovery Mill Company's railway, at Dungeness last Tuesday, fell off, and was instantly killed by one of the wheels passing over her head.

The Daily Oregonian.

MONDAY MORNING, APRIL 2, 1877.

INTRODUCTORY.

The announcement I have to make to the readers of the OREGONIAN is a simple one. It has already been stated to the public that Hon. H. W. Corbett has disposed of the interest he held in the paper. I have purchased an important part of that interest. If it would not be deemed unnecessary egotism I should be pleased to give expression to the thought that in taking editorial charge of the OREGONIAN I address a good many readers to whom my work heretofore has made me somewhat familiar. I approach the work again with no little diffidence, and with a deeper sense of its responsibilities and requirements than I readily find words to express. The chair has been filled for several years by one who was able to bring to the work large and conceded abilities. None know this better than those who have often been numbered with his opponents. I do not undertake to continue his work; this will not be expected. No one can work wholly on the [illegible] plan, or in the spirit, of another. [illegible] right to say that certain [illegible] that have been developed [illegible] the course of the paper embody no inconsiderable part of the true theory of journalism, and will not be widely departed from.

[illegible] newspaper cannot make it the [illegible] of its existence to yield indiscriminate and servile support to party [illegible] measures. In such a course it [illegible] fulfill the better functions of [illegible]. An independent treatment [illegible] does not argue instability of purpose or weakness of conviction. The true mean is found between [illegible] and obsequious partisanship on [illegible] hand and mincing neutrality on [illegible] newspaper devoting itself [illegible] discrimination to the requirements of partisanship, and looking only [illegible] never yet reached assured [illegible] success. All the better [illegible] influential journals of the [illegible] in a conspicuous degree [illegible] of Republican tendencies, [illegible] powerful support the Republican [illegible] indebted for its continued [illegible] the higher plane. It is [illegible] criticism that stops at the [illegible] one's own party; it is a poor [illegible] for these times that [illegible] or avoids critical [illegible] measures and men con[illegible] the party with which it is [illegible] the higher success that [illegible] and honorable journ[illegible] to be known simply [illegible] a party policy, the [illegible] or party measures [illegible] supporter of party [illegible] to [illegible] or desert. [illegible] party has its uses and [illegible] a choice. No [illegible] of moral and political [illegible] to stand [illegible] the plea that [illegible] for them; and [illegible] party is to be done [illegible] have simply [illegible] of protection. Party [illegible] condition [illegible]. There are [illegible] of government [illegible] divide. But [illegible] to be committed [illegible] measures his [illegible] still less can a [illegible] larger responsibility than any individual [illegible] allow itself [illegible] to be pledged [illegible] may be done or attempted [illegible] party, or to be [illegible] unfitness [illegible].

[illegible] just conception [illegible] dignity of his work [illegible] grievances or animosities [illegible] interests or requirements [illegible] upon the public [illegible] that he makes [illegible] idea [illegible]. Politics [illegible] a single, and not at all [illegible] feature, of [illegible]. State large [illegible] affecting the [illegible] of a rising community [illegible] upon the public attention [illegible] of journalism [illegible] as they arise, [illegible] endeavor to further [illegible] and moral development [illegible] the basis of a people's [illegible] greatness. [illegible] direction [illegible] to [illegible] continue to be an [illegible] newspaper to a community in [illegible] long been indispensable, I [illegible] higher or ulterior purpose. [illegible] will look only to legitimate [illegible] a public journal for success. [illegible] political or other schemes [illegible] for the advantage of any [illegible] connected with it will have [illegible] to be sought through party [illegible] or the machinery of political [illegible]. Between such things and [illegible] pursuit of journalism there [illegible] incompatibility that never can be [illegible], however earnest and sincere [illegible]. To be successful the news[illegible] must be pursued for its [illegible]. Addressing myself to this [illegible] I request the considerate indulgence [illegible] public.

H. W. SCOTT.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA CASE.

The first step toward a solution of the difficulty in South Carolina has been taken. An order will be issued withdrawing the United States troops from the State House at Columbia. This would seem necessary, since it is hardly possible to maintain much longer a state of things so unusual as the presence of troops in such a situation. To prolong it indefinitely only aggravates the evil; and a time must come when there will be an end of trying to support a government anywhere that is not backed by a public opinion that will enable it to maintain itself. It seems probable that the decision in South Carolina will also be left to the [illegible] consideration. Both sides in South Carolina claim to have an indisputable case. Hampton bases his claim on a majority of the votes thrown; Chamberlain undertakes to show that many of Hampton's votes were fraudulent. Examination of the returns shows some singular results. The most considerable of the asserted frauds are those alleged in the vote of Edgefield county. By the census of 1875 the number of white males in the county over twenty-one years of age was 2,722; number of colored, 4,400; total, 7,122. The vote of the county in 1876 was 3,107 for Chamberlain, and 6,267 for Hampton; total, 9,374, of which number 4,974 were whites, being an excess of 2,252 white votes over the number reported by the census taken one year before. The vote of the county for Governor in 1874 was 6,268, of which number the Democratic candidate had 2,900. It must be admitted that the figures do not wear a look favorable to the claim of an honest election in 1876. The vote of the whole State as counted from the ballot boxes, and before any returns were rejected, gave Chamberlain 91,127 and Hampton 92,261. This would make the latter's majority 1,134, and on this he claims to have been duly elected. But the Chamberlain party point to the excessive vote in several places, and especially in Edgefield county, and claim to be able to back up their case with detailed proofs of fraud. The Republican party clearly has but the smallest possible fraction of the white vote of the State. Most of the wealth of the State and other potent influences are therefore against it. The same result which has followed a similar condition of things in other Southern States may be anticipated in South Carolina, however anxious we might be as Republicans to see it otherwise. The only way out of it is to obliterate the color line in politics. If the present administration can pursue a course that will effect this, the result will be an achievement for the country.

When a newspaper inserts a correspondent's article, written for publication, that contains matter of a personal nature reflecting on any one, such correspondent ought to be willing that his name be made known to the person whom he censures, if that person demands the name. It has long been a rule with the OREGONIAN, and is a rule with reputable and responsible newspapers generally, to permit any person who may be attacked with personalities by correspondents to know who the accusers are. This is justice only; and correspondents ought to understand that they cannot use the impersonality of a newspaper to cover assaults on individuals which they would not have the courage to make openly and in their own proper names. We shall adhere to this rule with regard to this class of correspondence; but in no other case will the names of writers be made known without their consent.

Denver correspondence of the Chicago Tribune furnishes extended information in regard to the slaughter of buffalo. It is known, of course, that the animal is rapidly disappearing from all accessible ranges; yet the number killed annually is still very large. At Greeley, Col., there are nine establishments for treating and preparing robes and skins for market. Few large and fine animals are now found, and the robes usually are of less real value than formerly, though the price is greater.

Several communications relating to the school election, which takes place to-day, are crowded out. We would have willingly published all that were offered, including those from Salem, had space sufficed; but the number was so great it was impossible.

CITY.

[illegible] FERRY.—We learn that Mr. Jos. [illegible] talks of putting on a ferry boat at the [illegible] portion of the city—to ply between the [illegible] Clay street and a point opposite, on [illegible] bank of the river. Some years ago [illegible] was put on to run between the points [illegible], but was soon withdrawn owing to [illegible] of patronage. As such an investment [illegible] not be made self-sustaining then, it can [illegible] prove so now. It seems more like a [illegible] of spitework, to annoy the present [illegible] of the Stark street ferry than for any [illegible] purpose.

WILLIAM C. MORAND.

THE ARREST OF THIS PERSON AT GARDINER, LAST FRIDAY MORNING, BY OFFICER M'COY, CHARGED WITH THE WILLFUL AND DELIBERATE MURDER OF THOMAS D. DAVIS, NEAR PORTLAND, ON THE 3D OF MARCH, 1877—HE REFUSES TO MAKE ANY STATEMENT—PROTESTS HIS INNOCENCE OF THE AWFUL CRIME.

Saturday morning, March 3d, between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock, Thomas D. Davis was murdered in a cabin about 4 miles south of this city, in a most horrible manner. The assassin first literally chopped Davis' head to pieces with a hatchet, then stabbed the lifeless body repeatedly. Not satisfied with his atrocious and hellish work of death, the murderer drew the gory remains partly from the bed, where the man was sleeping when the assassins entered the cabin, and cut his throat from ear to ear. Here, with any human being but that of a fiend incarnate, the thirst for vengeance would have ceased. But to thrice murder Davis did not seem sufficient to glut the revenge of the assassin. Piling around the horribly mutilated body all the loose articles found lying about the room, the assassin set fire to the cabin, thus reducing the building and contents to ashes. In the commission of this terrible crime two men were concerned. Thomas, who was a partner of Davis, and in the cabin at the time the murder was committed, came to the city soon after the tragedy and gave his version of the affair. Suspicion was at first directed toward him; but the most careful scrutiny of al the circumstances connected with the crime, and rigid cross-examination failed signally to implicate him. The authorities having become well satisfied that Thomas was guiltless of the murder, began to look elsewhere for traces which would lead to the apprehension and conviction of the perpetrators of this fearful deed of blood.

RELATIONS OF MORAND AND DAVIS.

Davis came to Portland several years ago. Soon after his arrival here he became acquainted with a man named William C. Morand. These two men always appeared to be on the most friendly and intimate terms. Their friendship seemed to be of a very close and confidential nature. Last year Morand was arrested on a criminal charge of adultery. When bail was required to prevent the defendant from being committed to prison, Davis manifested his friendly feelings toward Morand by becoming his surety. Subsequently the case against Morand was dismissed and his bondsman exonerated. At the same term of the Circuit Court, we believe, a civil action was also instituted against Morand—a suit for the recovery of $10,000 damages for seduction. This case was compromised by the defendant paying costs.

It is reported (though we do not vouch for the authenticity of the statement) that after the cases against Morand were both dismissed, some trouble occurred between him and Davis in this wise: To indemnify Davis at the time he went on the bond, Morand deeded to him certain property of which he was in possession, located somewhere in the States. After the difficulties were over, Morand requested Davis to deed him back the property. This, it is said, Davis declined doing. He subsequently turned the property over to Mrs. Morand, who it is alleged executed a will bequeathing the property to her children. This led to some bitterness of feeling between the two men, and it is alleged Morand made significant threats against Davis. These reports are published merely for what they are worth. In the examination and trial which will soon follow, these reports, if authentic, will probably throw great light on the mysterious tragedy.

WHY MORAND WAS SUSPECTED.

Chief Lappeus, when notified of the murder, called at Morand's house, in the upper portion of the city, while on the way out to the scene. Hearing that Morand was a great friend of Davis', Lappeus thought it would be a very proper thing to apprise him of the murder and have him accompany the officers. He also hoped that Morand might lend him material assistance in tracking up the guilty parties. On calling at the house Lappeus was told by a son of Morand's—a lad about thirteen years of age—that his father had started Friday morning for the mines in Wasco county, via The Dalles. Lappeus afterward learned that Morand had been seen by some parties late Friday afternoon with a black carpet-sack in his hand traveling southward along the macadamized road, near the Red House. This circumstance, together with others, first caused Lappeus to direct the eye of suspicion toward Morand. To satisfy himself as to the truth of the statement that Morand had started for the mines Friday morning, the Chief examined the books of the O. S. N. Co., and ascertained that he had not gone to The Dalles at all.

During the coroner's inquest, which lasted several days, the fact was elicited that Morand had left his home early Friday morning as stated by his son. Instead of going to the mines, however, he had gone to Oregon City and staid at a hotel there Friday night. His wife who went up to Dayton Saturday on a river steamer, to see a sick relative, stated before the coroner's jury that she saw him the last time early that morning when the boat passed through the locks. Nothing further could be learned of Morand's whereabouts, or where he was endeavoring to go. From a number of suspicious circumstances, prominent among which was his sudden and apparently clandestine departure from the city, and continued absence, Lappeus became strongly impressed with the belief that Morand was connected with the murder. Accordingly that officer quietly began to determine where he had gone. Some days elapsed before any satisfactory results were arrived at.

OBTAINING TRACES.

On the 15th ult. Lappeus learned through the sheriff of Lane county, that a man answering in every respect the description of Morand, had been seen at Cottage Grove, some distance beyond Eugene City. Accompanied by a man who would recognize Morand, however much he might disguise himself, Lappeus lost no time in repairing to Eugene. He waited around several days, and had the county pretty thoroughly searched, but failed to learn the whereabouts of the fugitive. At length the officer ascertained that Morand had left that part of the country, and was evidently beating slowly southward on foot. Apprising the sheriffs in the several counties through which Morand would be likely to travel, of what was wanted, and instructing them to be on the qui vive, Lappeus returned to Portland.

M'COY IN PURSUIT.

About the 23d inst. the chief received information that Morand had been seen at Drain Station. He had remained there a few days and then started for Gardiner, down on the coast. When this was known, Lappeus determined to send officer McCoy without delay. Time was precious, for Morand's object in striking coastward was very apparent. His purpose was to board some sailing vessel and go to San Francisco. As soon as arrangements could be made McCoy started. He left here last Tuesday morning and proceeded by rail to Drain Station, where the fugitive had last been heard from. Reaching there, the officer ascertained beyond doubt that his man had started down toward Scottsburg. He procured a team and lost no time in following. He left Drain Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, taking the road leading through the rugged coast range, and reached Scottsburg, 35 miles distant, in good time.

While at Drain, McCoy met a young man who had just arrived there from Gardener. Learning that fact, McCoy took him one side and exhibiting Morand's photograph, asked him if he had seen, while at Gardiner, a man whom the picture resembled. The young man looked at the photograph, and replied that he had seen a man at Gardiner just like him. He said that the person told him his name was William Craig; that he came from Nebraska. He also told McCoy that this man seemed very restless and uneasy, as if he was anticipating something very unpleasant, or in constant dread. During the conversation with the young man, Craig, (as he called himself), said that he was waiting at Gardiner only for a few days. He was expecting every mail letters and a package. The first vessel leaving for San Francisco he intended to secure passage.

McCoy knowing that not a moment was to be squandered pushed on in all haste. On reaching Scottsburg, McCoy learned that the little mail steamboat Rustler would not go down the Umpqua to Gardiner for several days, and there was no other way in which that place could be reached except by water. Here was a dilemma, which, if not speedily overcome, might render the pursuit a fruitless one after al. However, "Mac" proved equal to the emergency. He explained to Capt. Chapman of the Rustler the cogent nature of his errand, and also to Mr. Baker, the gentlemanly mail carrier between Drain and Gardiner. Capt. Chapman very kindly consented to make an extra trip to accommodate the officer, and Mr. Baker agreed to accompany him. The distance is 20 miles, and after a quick run, the little steamer reached Gardiner.

THE ARREST.

Before reaching there McCoy had ascertained from Mr. Barker that Morand, alias Craig, was stopping at Gardiner, the name of the hotel and the number of the room. With this knowledge, there was no delay. Accompanied by Barker, the officer proceeded to the house and to the room. It was about midnight, and Morand was, of course, in bed. The two men walked unceremoniously into the room with a light and aroused him from his sleep. When McCoy called his name he asked the question, "Who are you?" McCoy replied "Don't you know me?" Morand looked at him strangely for an instant, as if he did not recognize the officer, when McCoy said, "Get up, you are under arrest." He rose, but became fearfully agitated, turned pale, trembled like an aspen leaf, while his teeth chattered as if he had a violent chill. He seemed to give way to his feelings, and was so weak that McCoy had to help him dress. When the officer asked what was the matter he could not articulate an intelligible word. He was handcuffed and taken on board the Rustler, and the party started back for Scottsburg. Only twenty minutes elapsed from the time the steamer touched the wharf until she was steaming back again, which must be taken as quick time.

Scottsburg was soon reached, and officer and prisoner were on the way to Drain. That station was reached Friday afternoon at three o'clock, thus making the round trip to Gardiner and back in 30 hours. Saturday forenoon Chief Lappeus received the following dispatch from Drain: "All right; will be down on the evening train." While on the way here, Morand appeared very moody and reticent. He was excessively non-communicative, refusing to make any statement or offer any explanation for his singular conduct since the murder. His answers were evasive and unsatisfactory. Once he asked the officer what he was arrested for. McCoy replied, "I should think you ought to know!" He said he did not. The officer said, "You are arrested on the charge of murder." Morand seemed much agitated, and protested again and again his entire innocence.

On reaching here he was conducted to the city jail and turned over to Lappeus. That officer had a private interview of an hour or more with the prisoner. He declined to make a statement or answer questions explanatory of his conduct, but asserted repeatedly his innocence. He is confined in a dark cell and closely guarded.

DECLINES AN INTERVIEW.

Yesterday we called at the jail and were kindly afforded by Chief Lappeus an opportunity of conversing with the prisoner. In answer to our question if he would like to make a statement, or give a version of the affair, Morand replied that he did not desire to make any—that he had not yet seen his attorney. If his attorney was present he would have no objections to talk. He said: "I have only this to say: I am as innocent of the murder of Thomas D. Davis as you are (pointing to Lappeus and the reporter). I am an innocent man, and if Davis was here now, or if he was to speak from Heaven, if he is there, he would say, 'He is an innocent man, let him go free.'" Afterward he said: "Why should I murder Davis; he was one of the best friends I ever had." We asked him if he had any idea who committed the awful crime, when he answered, "No, I have not the remotest idea who murdered him. So far as I know he had no enemies." While the conversation was going on Morand seemed deeply affected; his voice and frame trembled, and tears almost started from his averted eyes. His little son came to the door of the cell during the interview. The father called him to his side, wrung the boy's hand, murmured over some endearing names, threw his arms around the lad and kissed him. He asked in a faltering voice how his mother was, and breaking completely down wept like a child.

Morand says that he walked every step of the way between Portland and Gardiner. When arrested his clothes were in tatters and his boots almost worn out. He told Lappeus he left Portland because he was afraid that Mr. T. A. Wood would have him arrested on a charge of adultery. When brought face to face with Mr. Thomas, yesterday, Morand betrayed much agitation, and came near being overcome by his feelings several times.

We are not apprised as to when the preliminary examination will take place. As soon as the testimony is procured, the case will come up for examination.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

The "Only Original" Fair Play.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

It must take our friend, alias Examiner, alias Patron, alias Enquirer, etc., etc., considerable time to think of so many different titles—but he needs to assume one more—Inquirer after truth. He seems to hang to the Barracks and Sunday school song with a death grip; no wonder, drowning men catch at straws. If such health-destroying influences exist at the Market street school, it is about time for the bad effects to begin to be felt; but no such effects are apparent, although the school has been in progress for seven months. The average health of the pupils compares favorably with that of any of the other schools. The "several children" who left there might have been influenced by other causes than the effects of bad gases. The directors have taken every care to see that the character of the schools should in no way partake of sectarianism, and in view of this they sent an order to the teachers that no sectarian songs should be sung in school. In our schools are children belonging to famililies of every denomination—Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, etc., etc. Any one with good judgment can see that to allow exercises pertaining to sectarianism in institutions which all are equally taxed to support would be unjust and unwise. But we have it from several teachers that the singing of merely religious Sunday school songs has never been forbidden.

It seems that stove blacking must have been an almost indigestible article, or else our friend's digestive faculties must have been suffering from relaxation, since it has taken it a space of nearly three years to reach the surface. How heavily it must have laid upon his stomach all that time. We doubt if twenty-five cents voluntarily expended in any other article in the world, unless it were a nest of yellow jackets, could have caused any one so much uneasiness. Since "Inquirer" can answer questions so well, we would humbly inquire who selected those teachers to whom the credit is given for the "present high standing of the schools?" We wonder where he obtained the interesting information that the "board have not done the teaching?" Astonishing fact! Why was it not forthcoming sooner? We admit, sooner than to appear little and mean about it, that the "teachers did do the teaching." But selecting 33 of 34 competent teachers who have sustained the deservedly high reputation of the schools as ours have done ought to deserve some credit. If Mr. Morgan controls the other members of the board why did they elect Mr. Johnson after Mr. Morgan had voted against him? We hope with "Inquirer" that "the people will remember and respect the wishes of a large majority of the teachers," and re-elect A. H. Morgan, their most faithful friend.

ORIGINAL FAIR PLAY.

A Tribute to Mr. Killin as School Superintendent of Clackamas County.

OREGON CITY, March 31, 1877.

I see that your school election causes you some discussion. I wish to write to you in this behalf, and remind you of the fact that Mr. Benton Killin was superintendent of the public schools of Clackamas county in 1868, and that he has been also a successful teacher. I take pleasure in publishing these facts, as it may aid your citizens to form an intelligent estimate of Mr. Killin as a school man who has had experience. While superintendent he attended to the duties of his office punctually and satisfactorially. If you want an intelligent director, elect him.

A FORMER PORTLANDER.

PORTLAND, April 2, 1877.

There is a proverb which says "those who will be carping should look well at home, whether there be not something lame there," and I would advise "Voter," before criticising the "King's English," to consult his Webster Unabridged or Worcester, as his preference may incline him. As his communication shows, however, that he is not accustomed to the use of the dictionary, I beg leave to state that both authorities give "principalness," the state of being principal or chief, while neither refer to any such word as principalship, even as a mooted point. If the accuracy of "Voter's" statements bear any analogy to his philology, the public may judge how much of the controversy has been worse than wordy warfare.

R. G. S.

From Profs. Pratt and Anderson.

PORTLAND, March 31, 1877.

While we do not wish to be held accountable for all assertions made in regard to the abuses existing in the management of the public schools, yet we are willing to hold ourselves responsible for the truth of those charges, for which we have been cited as authority. Feeling that our integrity has been called in question by the published statements of S. W. King and others in the interest of A. H. Morgan, Esq., and having been taught that "Truth is a divine attribute and the foundation of every virtue," we have decided to state, in this public manner, our belief that the election of Mr. Killin as director, will be for the best interests of the public schools of our city.

I. W. PRATT,
A. J. ANDERSON.

Another "Friend of the Schools" Speaks.

PORTLAND, April 1, 1877.

A great many of our people have been misled to believe that a majority of the thirty-three teachers in our public schools are opposed to the election of Mr. Morgon as director to-day. Now, after carefully taking items for the last week or two, I can assure them that if this contest could be left to a vote of the teachers, Mr. Morgan would receive a vote of thirty to three, at the least calculation. The only reason why those three opposed Mr. Morgan is because last year they wanted to run the board of directors, and failed.

And now, Voter says that if Mr. Killin be elected, "he will keep the schools up to their present high standard." Their present high standard! Who brought them to their present high standard? Who ever heard of Mr. Killin's enlisting in the cause of education? Has he not universally given aid and comfort to the disaffected, and to the enemies of our schools? Proof is not wanting. SCIENTIA.

The Board of Directors Want a Certificate.

PORTLAND, April 1, 1877.

A member of the present board of directors circulated a paper among the teachers of the public schools of this city for their signatures, and to the following effect: That we are satisfied with the management of the schools and the conduct of all school officers during the present year. Some of the teachers signed this circular under the protest that they did make exceptions, and mentioned those to whom they had objections; some signed it without understanding what it meant or what it was for; others who had less capacity for signing such truthful documents refused.

What does this electioneering board want of such a document? I think they ought to send this circular among the leading tax-payers for their endorsement and not among the teachers who are under the control of the directors and liable to be discharged after two weeks' notice, unless they give satisfaction.

It seems to me this is a new way for boards of directors to obtain certificates of good character; I always thought that certificates of this kind, to be of any value, should come from persons in authority, or at least from individuals whose action in the matter would be free from all manner of compulsion or undue influence; this was not the case in this instance.

TRUTHFUL TAXPAYER.

A Guinea is Scarce Yellower

Than the complexion of a person becomes who omits to regulate his liver when that important gland grows neglectful of its secretive function. Moreover, the stomach under such circumstances becomes disordered, the bowels are constricted, pains in the side and between the shoulder blades are felt, the head aches, and the nervous system shares in the general derangement. This concatenation of evils is, however, easily remediable with that matchless regulating tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which insures the secretion and flow of healthy bile, acts gently but effectually upon the bowels, and removes every symptom of nervous or digestive trouble. The result is that renewed tone is given to the entire system; the sallow, haggard appearance of the face to which biliousness gives rise is superseded by the glow of health, and the frame gains in substance as well as vigor.

MONDAY MORNING, APRIL 2, 1877.

EASTER THOUGHTS.

Kneeling beside her 'mid a kneeling throng
In the dim twilight of the temple, where
The Easter buds, scent laden, filled the air
With sweet aroma, and the solemn song,
Low chanted, floated through the holy place,
I watched the curtains of her melting eyes
Veil their soft radiance, and o'er that fair face
Stole reverent stillness, as with gentle sighs
Sins from her sinless lips were soon confessed.
Ah, fairest saint, were all sins but as thine!)
Then lifting her white forehead from its pillowed rest,
Turning her sad, sweet visage, pure with thought divine,
She murmured, bending toward me as I sat,
"Charles, Mrs. Smith yet wears her winter hat!"
—PARK BENJAMIN in Harper's for April.

PROFESSORS OF LITERATURE.

The following is from an article on the above subject in "The Old Cabinet" of Scribner for March:

Now that the talk is about colleges, may not an outsider express surprise that in one department of study the colleges (with rare exceptions) fail to engage the services of experts. English literature is supposed to be a matter of considerable importance in the intellectual training of young persons; every college has a chair of belles-lettres, or English literature or rhetoric, or modern and unclassic literature of some kind—and yet how many of the colleges in this country have professors in these chairs who know what literature is when they see it?—three or four colleges perhaps—but not many more—so far as the public can be sure of.

There are plenty of men in such positions who have all the dates at their fingers' ends; who have systems, and theories, and what amount of insight and zeal knowledge the gods may allow. They can publish the handbooks of English literature (very bad ones); they can lecture on æsthetics, on literary methods, on the influence of so and so on something or other, or on somebody or other; and in reality they do not know what they are talking about. There are comparatively few people, at best, who do know what literature is when they see it; generally such people prove their insight and ability either by writing criticisms on literature (like Sainte-Beuve), or by making literature (like Longfellow), or both (like Lowell).

We saw a letter written not long ago from a young fellow out West, of literary promise and ambition, to an Eastern man, asking him which of three Eastern colleges named he would advise him to enter. Two of these colleges were old and famous institutions; the third was new. The person questioned did not venture to advise in favor of any one institution; he told what he knew about each; but with reference to the new college he said that so long as a certain professor, whom he named, remained there, this would be a good place for his young Western friend. The professor to whom reference was made is a teacher of literature who meets all the requirements mentioned above. He knows what the thing is when he sees it. He can criticise it, he can make it. He has the enthusiasm of the creative faculty. He stirs up the young men about him not only to keen appreciation of literature, both old and new; but he impels them to accomplishment in literature.

The effect of such an influence upon young men can hardly be overestimated. The history of literature—as of all the other arts—is a record of causes and effects of a character like this. We do not underrate the element of original genius. But when we read the history of any art, we find that the [illegible] are popularly cited as exceptions to the rule, are, after all, in a sense, the mere outgrowths of circumstances; and the presence of a good and an inspiring teacher has always been one of the most fortunate and most productive. If it is answered that "the making out of geniuses" is not the function of an institution of learning, it may be replied that the teacher best fitted to awaken dormant genius is also the best calculated to correct and cultivate and elevate the mental tone of the ordinary member of his class.

The blue glass mania has reached its climax in the case of a Chicago man. He went to a [illegible] and bought a pair of blue [illegible] eyes. He cropped into [illegible] a little round piece of [illegible] in the top of his hat in place of the [illegible] ventilator. He then partook of a [illegible] at a restaurant with a blue [illegible] his fingers into a blue glass [illegible] and refused to drink anything [illegible] hoisted him up a mug with a [illegible] bottom. The day was now spent, [illegible] home in a blue light street car, the [illegible] meeting his children at the [illegible] to kiss any but those having [illegible] down in a blue chair to read the [illegible] excitement, and got into such a [illegible] that he took some blue ink, [illegible] his will that at his death the [illegible] should be blue glass and his [illegible] made of blue granite, he grabbed [illegible] and blew out his brains.

[illegible]—The Idaho Statesman [illegible] was much less than the average [illegible] snow during the past winter the [illegible] rather gloomy for placer [illegible] the first half of the month of [illegible] made quite a change in the outlook. [illegible] winter was quite mild, even in the mountain regions where the fall of [illegible] the heaviest. In the basins or depressions where the mines are located, alternate [illegible] and snow have kept the earth [illegible] saturated, so that the heavier [illegible] March furnished a water supply [illegible] prove very nearly, if not quite, [illegible] of average seasons.

[illegible] England, a porter saved and [illegible]. His wife, who drank, [illegible] his coat, in the pocket of [illegible] the title deeds. The pawnbroker [illegible] restore them unless the advance [illegible]. The Court of Chancery has re[illegible] from parting with them pending [illegible] action.

[illegible] case!" is what a bootblack said to [illegible] man the other day, when he had [illegible] one of his brogans.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Inquiry at Hall's residence elicited the information that the family [illegible] heard nothing whatever from the missing [illegible]. They are bewildered by the accounts published of his arrival in Liverpool, and if it really be he, they cannot account for his continued silence.

The Tweed Ring Frauds.

NEW YORK, April 2.—There are ominous [illegible] owings in private circles here of startling disclosures to follow Tweed's release this week. It is understood his confession exposes [illegible] criminal act of the association except where [illegible] statute of limitation bars prosecution; nevertheless there is much sensation among the friends of parties whose reputations are likely to suffer. Among these is a well known newspaper editor and publisher whose endorsement, will be exhibited upon Tweed's [illegible] commands to the journalist's order paid to silence opposition to ring legislation and buy votes.

The Boss' Travels.

The story of Tweed's escape and wanderings [illegible] full of exciting and romantic interest. He [illegible] disappeared December 5, a year ago, and was concealed by professional criminals, in actual [illegible] of New York, and subsequently at the [illegible] burglars' rendezvous, on Staten Island [illegible] toward the middle of February following. Thence he went to Florida where he remained [illegible] midsummer, part of the time in the coast [illegible] light house, whence he crossed to Cuba, and [illegible] proceeded to Spain in the vessel from which he was captured on her arrival. Weighing nearly 300 pounds in his palmy days, he shrank to 165, but is now rapidly improving.

Tweed Admits All.

Your correspondent has authority for the statement that Tweed has surrendered all his property and effects and made a complete assignment. He refuses counsel, and has allowed his case to go by default. He has written to Chas. O'Conor that he does not intend to resist or oppose any suits that may be brought against him in the name of the people. Last Saturday was the last day of appeal in the great suit against him.

The Telephone.

NEW YORK, April 2.—There was an exhibition of the telephone here this evening. A piano performed upon at Philadelphia 100 miles distant was distinctly heard in Steinway hall.

A Little Flood in Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 2.—The melting snow, falling of rain and increasing warmth of the weather for the past few days, which culminated yesterday and sent the snow off rapidly, has had the effect of flooding the southwestern portion of this city to an extent equal to [illegible] miles square. The water which the sewers and drains could not carry off with sufficient rapidity has risen in some cases to first stories and driven from them the people, who are now obliged to make way about in boats improvised from floating timber and sidewalks. Damage to property is very great in that section west of Western Avenue and south of Harrison street, and far out into the country. Water this afternoon receded somewhat, but it will be several days before it leaves entirely. No lives lost as far as heard from.

The damage inside the city limits is small compared with that to the farming lands along the Chicago and Alton railroad and the Desplaines canal. The water in the canal, which is six feet higher than the ordinary level, has broken through in several places and flooded the low lands for miles to the south and east of the railroad. At a late hour to-night the water was rising again, and reports from the surrounding country are to the effect that all the streams are full and the water gaining. No trouble will be experienced in the business portion of the city.

Quitting the Brotherhood.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—Nearly all the railroad engineers will leave the brotherhood and continue work.
